VINEGAR BITTERS

PURELY VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL

D. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing the merit of acting as a mild stimulant and thereby exerting a natural influence in all cases of Loss of Appetite, Bad Stomach, Torpidity of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

J. WALKER, Prop'r. R. H. McDONALD & CO., Druggists and Gen. Agts., San Francisco, Cal., and cor. of Wash'ington and Charlton Sts., New York.

SELECT MISCELLANY.

YESTERDAY.

BY EDITH LEE.

Yesterday was fair. I remember how cheerily shone the sun, and how the birds sang, and how the morning glories came creeping up to my window. Do you think I mean those twenty-four hours preceeding this present day? Oh, no; I refer to that string of yesterdays that have fleeted by, and which have left us standing—loitering in their wake, with hands outstretched, petitioning to hold fast but one tiney joy, one that we perceive too rapidly vanishing. Oh, the looking back; oh, the chasm between now and then!

I remember how I sat at a window and looked abroad at a belt of trees, and at a cross on a church steeple above them shining like gold, and beyond still, at a bredth of sky that was as blue as the bluest depths of ocean. I remember how there was a screen of vines to frame the sunlight in a golden green setting, and how a bird sang in the branches of a tree growing in the yard; yes, I remember all this, and that every day I used to hear a dear, bad, little boy in my neighbor's house crying out, "oh, mama, please mama, I'll never do it no more;" and I remember that after a while I grew to wondering what was this he was ordinarily in the custom of "never doing no more;" and how in the world his mother could have the heart to resist that bad, sweet pitious little voice, singing the same round-lelay three hundred and 'am. I'll never do it no more." Poor little fellow! Why didn't he do as I used to do? March bravely up and take his whipping, and go straight off and do it again; then march up bravely the second time and get another whipping? Do you remember how you writhed under the few faint taps the dear old mother gave? If you don't, or if you are ashamed to own you do, I'll none of you. My lad, do you assert you never got a whipping; or getting one, that you never winced under it? I'shaw! I'd as soon believe the moon was made of green cheese. Show me a little fellow that never maimed a fly, nor stoned a cat, nor "smashed" a window, nor played leap-frog, nor pinched his sister and sneered at her for a "girl," nor ever "sneaked off" from lessons in school, nor ever got other boys to write his compositions, nor ever wrote those of other boys, nor ever knew what little scapegrace it was who broke the school-master's glasses in trying them on; show me such an one, and I would prophesy for him but an insignificant place in the ranks of life; the roll of musketry and the beat of drum could arouse no enthusiasm in so tame so docile a nature. Ah well, my lads, the outer bur was a trifle rough, but I dare say warm, brave hearts beat beneath your jackets; he who is no craven in the battle of life was e'en a veritable boy, sweeping into the house like a strong wind, bringing freshness and gladness and spirit to revive the drooping mother.

I wonder, now that I sit no more beside that vine-screened window, nor look abroad upon that belt of trees with the cross shining as a beacon above them, I wonder what has become of that sweet, bad, little boy, who was wont to put his mother to the trouble of administering a chastisement every day of his life! He never seemed guilty of falling but in one much-loved sin—daily specified as "it" in his little, plaintive voice. What was that tiny, dearly-esteemed sin, I wonder!

Poor little fellow! Perhaps he had been caught making mud pies; and who don't like mud pies? Didn't I used to deem the pastry cook a farce; and that, compared to my dearly beloved experiments in the soft mire, that range of dainties in her department would sink, never to rise and seek their level again.

What a time is that for children! What a wonderful time! For us who have grown up, and who have left it in the past—it is simply yesterday; long ago we put away those tiney joys; one by one our childish dreams have fallen from us as garments scant and well worn, to be donned never again. How bitterly the blasts blow upon us now! How ruthlessly sorrow fills us with his strong hand!—Yesterday, we children sat with faces turned to the far towns and meadows, and gathered roses and buttercups on the way, and cried gaily out at the beauty of the distant hills, and gardens, and music, and wondered that the earth should be so strangely fair.

To-day, we have reached some of those halting places, and our eyes are full of tears; and our hearts, ah! they fainted once—twice—on the road; for there were the the terrible partings, and the graves, and the lost hopes, and the long, long days, and the longer nights, and weary watchings, and the lingering farewells, and the last kisses upon lips ere the coffin lid shuts them in forever. Yes, we have had our joys, but we have had our sorrows two!

Do you remember that day when the first death was in the house? We were quite small then, and the awful stillness of that shrouded form was appalling! For months afterward we would be awake at night, shuddering at the beating of the rain upon the windows, or the moan of the wind around key-holes and down chimneys, but when summer came we went afar into the green country and forgot, amid hills and cows and clover and farm houses, there was a dark, dark thing such as death; oh, we forgot the horror of it, the bitterness of it!

Do you remember how the years passed on, and how we were among the brightest and gayest in the land! Up in the morning with the birds, and out on the uplands, or in with the pines brushing amid fallen leaves for cones and burs, or wooing the green needles to shower us over with their spintry barbs! Bright and gay were we till that shadow fell which has marked itself a solemn, reverent nich in the years for all time to come. The sun shone brightly, one day, and the birds sang. Yet there were two little hands folded together, there was a gleam of golden hair, a brow fair and white; and there was the darling of a household in her pale, dead beauty, lying before us a guthered lilly. Year after year the day rolls around, and we come down to the family table, and there is a look on our faces which tells to each other how thought is traveling backward, how it has leaped the gap in our midst, and how it sees only the terrible yesterday which dawned with so much of desolation, though the flowers were in bloom, and the children played, and thrushes chirped.

I can't tell why I wander on in this melancholly strain; there are so many yesterdays in my life gurgling over with freshness, and bloom, and beauty; so many sheaves of golden joys yet ripe for the hearves; so many stars coming up from the east toward the meridian—stars that are flashing, ruby worlds that link the harmonies of this vast sphere of life!—Yet I love to think and write of those whom I hope to meet again in that fair city beyond the clouds; that city with the gates of pearl and streets of jasper; that city where the faces of those we knew on earth shine out with a wonderful lustre, rare and holy. So it is I turn to one whose time for youth and beauty seemed all too brief; one whose flower of life blossomed where the angels dwell and where the weary weep no more, and where pain and sorrow are never known again!

When the summer was warm and bright upon us there were two, three, six of them—a bright, joyous band; how they used to sing and laugh and dance; how they used to tease and frolic and romp! The days flew past too speedily; the nights rushed headlong. Brightest amid the bright troop moved one—that sweet and gentle girl, Minnie S——, who flashed upon us like a sunbeam in all the radiance of a gay, blithe nature! I remember how green were the river banks, and how at evening the cowbells would come up the roads in a faint, broken tinkle, and how at night the houses whitened in the moonlight, and the lamps shone ruddily from the windows. I remember how free we were from care, and how kindly the voices of friends seemed to fall on our hearts, and how cheery it was to understand our elders were gladdened by mingling with the young whose time for sorrow has not quite come. Was it well we knew not that ere long she—the blithest of the group—would leave us for a brighter home? Is it well to say, "Now I hold my friend, now I have him to love, but I know next year will come that dreadful parting; be will go from me, and I shall have only my tears and my sorrow, and of our friendship nothing but memory will cling?" Not so, not so; it is well we know not our friend was going away; it was well. When the last new year set in we found her falling to sleep; glad to be at rest from the long, long days and nights of suffering, knowing that the Father had called her home. [illegible] about the house.

I remember the sweet face as I last saw it, more beautiful in death than in life, the most beautiful dead face I ever looked upon. It lay in fair, serene repose; no line, marred her cheek, or brow, or lip; the dark brown hair fell in long braids over the bosom; flowers like white clouds clustered amid that wealth of hair, and were scattered profusely over the white robed figure, as if loving to nestle where lay so much of peace and purity. Beside the window, a bird in a cage drooped sadly; it was Minnie's bird, but while its young mistress lay there so cold and still, no song trembled from its tiny throat; poor little bird! It seemed to understand somewhat of the desolation with which we stood beside that white and lovely picture, so soon to be put away in the grave. Yet who would not welcome death when he comes in guise thus placid, thus gentle! I think he is tender toward the young; he gathers them closely to his bosom, and bears them away to a land where they never lose youth, nor freshness, nor romance! When we who linger behind shall be gray haired with age, and shall be mumbling our pitiful stories, and shall be sitting in the twilight—cold and dull—looking back into dead years, there will glide from the spirit world to cheer us in our desolation these youths and these maidens with their laces young, and shining, and golden glad; their feet have never been weary with travel; their hands never hardened by toil; their hearts have never known the bitterness of sorrow or breaking. O happy, happy youth and beauty! To be plucked from the garden on a morn when the dew is yet spangling the blossoms, and the grass is green and waving; to be plucked from the garden ere comes the noonday sun to scorch and wither their fragrance; ere falls the rain in pittiless cadence upon their sweet dreams. Happy, happy youth!

I do not think we lose those who die; they go from us in a strong, a brave love, and that love lasts forever, and no time can darken it, and the grave cannot shut it in, nor can eternity float it away. No, oh! no.

The river still flows on; and the boats sail away; and the people glide to and fro; and the twilight falls; and the stars come out; but it seems all changed to me now, vastly changed! I wonder who listens for the cowbells, who marvels at the green banks; who notes the houses whitening in the moon-rays, or the lamps shining ruddily from the windows.

I am glad the voices of friends fell upon our hearts kindly then; I am glad we young people were so happy. You see that was yesterday, and some of us have dropped off from life, and some have severed old ties, and have gone far away; and some have found new friends, forgetting the others; and some have formed new ties and new associations, and the old loves and the old friendships are faded. So we meet and part; live and die; and the world goes on and on without pause.

What matters it that yesterday has gone; it was fair, I know; but it is past, it is dead, it is buried. Look up; do you not see the new day breaking in the East? Do you not see the world trembling with the sweet, new life stirring on her hill-brows?

Still, still, yesterday was fairer; then lay its memory to heart; lay it to heart as you would place a flower between the leaves of some dear book; green shall it rest with you forever and aye; green shall it go with you to your grave.

My friend, when will dawn that day that shall know no yesterday, no parting, no sorrow, no death; that day which will see the sun rise; and the birds sing, and the children play, and the people come and go, but which will be no day for you nor for me. It is surely on the way; let us look to it then that our yesterdays be made fairer; let us look to it that our lives be not all of this world; let us be braver, and brighter, and truer. Then, ah then, will we not shrink from the call; rather, we will go gladly forward and upward to climb the golden hills, and to face the stars, and the angels, and the majesty of God.

Yesterday was fair; but let us make to-day fairer; let us make to-day shine in our hands. To-day! What a treasure trove we own! How long may it be ours to hold? Perhaps not a year; perhaps not a night; perhaps not an hour!

A GOOD STORY.

"I never did see such a sight in all my life," quoth Mrs. Narley, elevating her two rheumatism twisted hands in the air. "Dust on them beautiful velvet carpets; glass in the conservatory windows all broken; chickens scratching up all the geraniums in the front lawn, and the lazy servants dawdling away their precious time, while poor, dear Mr. Avenel and

The Beaver Argus.

J. WEYAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

Beaver, Pa., Sept. 11th, 1872.

LET the people remember that a John F. Hartranft received from a Philadelphia broker at one time two thousand dollars, and at various other times sundry large amounts, as his "divvy" in speculations in State funds.

YERKES, the Philadelphia broker, who is now serving out a term in prison, testified before a committee of the Legislature that John F. Hartranft used his position as Auditor General to gamble in stocks with the funds of the State. On account of this fact a number of the more respectable Republican journals of the State refuse to support him.

LET the people remember that if John F. Hartranft had been an honest Auditor General; and had made out his annual reports as he was required to, and taken an oath he would, that the Evans' swindle would never have been perpetrated and the $500,000 stolen by the ring, of which he was and is a member, would now be in the Treasury of the State.

SENATOR BILLINGFELT, whom the Ring journals dare not accuse of dishonesty, has charged that "the Auditor General has permitted the practice of a system in his department of settling some of the most important public accounts without requiring duly authenticated or properly qualified vouchers, to which no prudent business man in his individual transactions would submit."

JOHN F. HARTRANFT, ring candidate for Governor, has been Auditor General of the State for six years. During his term George O. Evans carried on his swindling operations, by which the State was robbed of nearly $500,000. Hartranft permitted Evans to get away with this sum, while he himself, according to his own sworn statement, had $7,000 of Evans' money in his pocket!

HARTRANFT paid a visit to Hollidaysburg the other day, and was permitted to come and go unnoticed. Nobody met him at the depot, nobody saw him off when he left. The Republican organ of Wayne county, one of the ablest journals of the State, repudiates the ticket set up by the Treasury Ring, and its many readers will act accordingly. Hartranft's visit utterly failed to turn the tide which is running against him in that part of the State.

THIS is the unpleasantly plain way in which the Philadelphia Press speaks of the great and good Renomination leader in Pennsylvania: "The great head-center of corruption and fraud, Simon Cameron, is now in Washington, disgracing the Republican party of the country by acting as the Chairman of its National Committee. His presence there is more dangerous to Gen. Grant than would be a Democratic victory in Maine."

THE Volksfreund, the German Republican paper of Lancaster, this State, last week hauled down the names of Hartranft and Allen, and takes square issue against the Treasury ring. It says that no blind fealty to party shall cause it to support dishonest men for public positions. The true way to preserve the Republican party is to "throw out" every bad man that it puts up. This will teach those who make our nominations to give us such candidates as are worthy of our support.

THE honest Democrats of New-York, united last year with the honest Republicans of that State and drove William M. Tweed and his gang of public plunderers from power. If the honest Democrats and honest Republicans of this State fail to drive the Cameron-Hartranft-Mackey plunderers into retirement at the October election, we shall not be surprised to hear that Tweed, Connelly, and Garvin intend to make Pennsylvania their future home. By a close alliance with our official robbers, the consolidated ring would do an extensive business in this State.

ONE of the most ludicrous sights to be seen this campaign is that of witnessing a large number of persons "fighting the rebels" (with terrible earnestness now, who had neither the patriotism nor nerve to fight them at all when they had arms in their hands and were warring against the Union. These latter-day fighters seem to think it quite manly to kick and punch a foe who has long since said "enough," laid down his arms and surrendered; but they never reflect for a moment that common sense people might doubt the courage which inspires such pugilism. "Let us have peace."

COL. MCCLURE spoke at Chambersburg on Saturday evening of last week. A dispatch to the Age says "it was the largest assemblage there has been for years in Franklin county. The audience was largely composed of Republicans. Colonel A. K. McClure spoke two hours on the issues of the day, national, State, and local. Much enthusiasm was manifested. The Chairman, George W. Zeigler, Esq., of Greencastle, has been for years a member of the Republican County Committee, and several times Chairman of the County Convention. Other officers of the meeting were leading business and professional men, and were formerly active Republicans."

NEVER in the history of our State politics have the lines been so clearly drawn between the people on the one hand and their betrayers, on the other, as they are in the present campaign. This is the gist of the fight in which we are engaged. The honest, intelligent masses have taken a firm stand "Stick to the principle or ruin" leading powerful by the people's money. Governor-ship in this result the ty-with money stolen from the State. The vulgar oath of this hoary-headed trickster, that no man's availability to places of trust and honor in Pennsylvania should be recognized without his consent and approval, is but the natural expression of an arrogance fostered by a life of unpunished political sins. For many years the detestation of Simon Cameron by the people of this State has been so earnest and general that there are probably few election districts in it where he could have secured an election to the meanest office by the popular vote. Notwithstanding this, he has managed, by means as notorious as they are disreputable, to keep himself in place, and to infect not only our own State, but the nation, in a measure, with the poison of his iniquitous example. In the Gubernatorial contest now pending, this man and his trained confederates have played their baddest card. Their defeat will be to them a matter of such magnitude, and attended with such disastrous consequences, that every conceivable villainy has been resolved upon to avert it. Let the people be warned. It is emphatically the people's fight. The result cannot be doubtful.—Forney's Press.

IS any man fit to be Governor of the great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania whose hands have been soiled by dabbling illegally in the public money for his individual benefit? John F. Hartranft has done this. It stands on record against him and we have yet to see the first fair attempt at a denial of the charge. The yeomen of Pennsylvania demand an honest executive, one in whom they can place implicit confidence, and upon whom the suspicion of taint, however slight, does not rest. Such a man is Hon. C. R. Buckalew, the people's candidate, able, honest, and fearless. Speculators in the people's money will be compelled to give him a wide berth.

GENERAL ALBRIGHT, one of the candidates for Congressman at large on the ring ticket, was principal in a financial transaction during the war which reflects no honor upon his character. General Albright had advertised for men to raise the 203d regiment of Pennsylvania volunteers; he was successful in obtaining recruits; he took these to Camp Curtin, knowing that he would be commissioned as Colonel of that regiment as soon as it could be mustered in; while waiting for the muster-in of his regiment, he had himself mustered in as a private to fill the quota of Banks township in his own county, and pocketed the bounty which was five hundred dollars. The next day his regiment was mustered into the service, and he along with it as its duly elected Colonel. It is clear from this that his sole purpose in mustering as a private was the mercenary one of drawing the bounty without rendering the slightest equivalent to the Government for it in the way of personal service. The ring people may think that this was only a sharp business transaction; outsiders cannot fail to set it down as a contemptible fraud.

GEN. THOMAS L. KANE, the hero of the Bucktail regiment during the late war, has been nominated by the Liberal Republicans and Democrats for Congress in the Nineteenth Districts counties of Erie, Warren, McKean, Forest, Elk, Cameron, Jefferson and Clearfield. This is the district now represented in Congress by Mr. Scofield. In 1868 Mr. Scofield's majority was a little over five hundred. Last year Stanton's majority in it was but 142 votes. Col. Kane, it will thus be seen, stands an excellent chance for election. He is the son of the distinguished jurist of that name, and a brother of Dr. Elisha Kent Kane, the Arctic explorer. Col. Kane comes from one of the most distinguished families of the State, and if elected to Congress will be an honor to that body.

WHO are Hartranft's successors? Are they his political enemies? Not so. They are the best and purest Republicans in Pennsylvania—men who know his character and are fully acquainted with his official career as Auditor General. Not a charge has been brought against him which is not substantiated by official documents and by the unimpeachable testimony of men who cast their ballots for him on former occasions. Sympathy cannot be created for him by declaring that he is the object of Democratic abuse. Not a single allegation has been made against him in any Democratic newspaper or by any Democratic speaker which is not fully sustained by the testimony of men and journals that are giving a hearty support to Grant. Hartranft and Allen are both accused of acts which would consign them to the penitentiary if the laws of the State were enforced, and the accusations are sustained by the most overwhelming proofs, all coming from Republican sources.

Think of this, voters, before you cast your ballots on the second Tuesday of October. Hartranft accused by papers of his own party, of corrupt practices! Buckalew, the Democratic candidate, admitted to be pure and unsullied by the press of all parties.—Gettysburg Compiler.

HON. DANIEL KALBFUS of Mauch Chunk, this State, delivered an address in the Court House here in favor of Geary's election during the campaign of 1868. The Radical of September 10th, 1869, Spoke of Mr. K. and his speech as follows:

"The Republican meeting at the Court House on last Tuesday night was a success. The house was well filled notwithstanding the wet weather, and nearly all present were voters. The speaker, Mr. Kalbfus, of Mauch Chunk, Asa Packer's town, did his subject justice and satisfied the audience, which satisfaction was repeatedly manifested by applause of a rousing character. Mr. K. is certainly a first-class stumper and the State committee have shown good judgment in selecting and assigning him to the western part of the State. He knows Asa "like a book," can tell why he ought not to be elected in a very convincing manner, and here re Asa is but little known these important matters."

t week the same Mr. Kalbfus ere again, but this time spoke t the Radical's candidate for nor. Look now what that pa- pinion of Mr. K. is. In its last Friday, and in referring eeting at which Mr. Kalbfus says:

obscure individual by the Kalbfus, made the audience laugh at a few stale jokes, and kept them from bursting asunder by omitting to droll out the whole supply."

Editors, like great liars, should have good memories.

We alluded some time since to the exhibition in New York, where the bar and the combined respectability of the legal profession went determinedly to work to crush the evils which had been entailed on a great city by a soulless political Ring. After a bold and resolute journalist had uncovered the wrongs of the Ring in question, and shown by figures the millions which were stolen from the municipal treasury, the New York bar united and struck at the judiciary which had screened the rascals who gloried in the wealth they filched from the people. The arbitrators of thieves, as well as the thieves themselves, were put on trial. The judiciary which had stooped to take a part in the plunder of the thieves was impeached, and after a trial, in the presence not only of the people of New York, but of the nation, Judge Barnard was stripped of the ermine, then hurled from the bench, and with a mark as indelible as that which Cain carried is now an outcast and a wanderer.

In this city and State we have certain men on trial, and the spectacle is no less impressive than that which was presented in the trial of Barnard. In the face of indubitable evidence, with the report of a Legislative investigating committee fixing the clear guilt of the man; with the sworn testimony of his associates in crime, and the people of the entire State appalled at the gigantic character of his malfeasance in office, the Cameron Treasury Ring audaciously forced the nomination of John F. Hartranft on the Republican party as a candidate for governor. The purest and the best men of the State went to Harrisburg to protest against that nomination. The mercantile, manufacturing, mining, and agricultural interests, which seldom take part in the primary proceedings of our party, sent their out-side representatives to Harrisburg to implore and even beseech that Hartranft be not put on the ticket. To nominate him was at the time pronounced an act of suicide and a deed of insult. From all parts of the State the mass of the people petitioned that either Ketchum, Jordan, Lilly or any other man but Hartranft, be selected to bear the banner of a Republican nomination for Governor. Men said, if he is innocent he can prove it, and then it will be time enough to recognize him as a leader. It was declared that to put him at the head of the ticket would pollute it throughout. But all this was of no avail. The decree of the Cameron Treasury Ring had gone forth—the interest of the Ring demanded Hartranft's nomination. The secrets of crime forced him on the people. The cohesive power of public plunder made his nomination irresistible in the convention, and thus to-day though resisted and denounced in the act of consummation, we have John F. Hartranft for Governor, the nominee not of the masses of the Republican party, nor by their will and consent, but of a clique, the head and front of which are the men whom the people charge with corrupting their political organization, plundering their Treasury, debasing their representatives, and degrading the very name of self-government.

Are we wrong in the statement of this case? Is not every one of the indictments against the Treasury Ring made up of facts from official records? There is no man audacious enough to deny our charge, and even the prisoners at the bar of the people make no effort at this denial, contenting themselves throughout the trial through which they are now passing with throwing mud at the witnesses from the Treasury. In the case of Barnard, the efforts of New York, the defence consisted exclusively to impugning the honesty of the witnesses for the prosecution. The Pennsylvania Treasury Ring has adopted the same line of defence, and as it did in Barnard's case, so will it fail in Hartranft's case. Hartranft's frauds are discussed in the broker's office, the merchant's counting room, in the workshop, in the furnace and forge fire, amid the hum of the rolling-mill, the music of the spindle, in the field of the farmer, on the railroad train, in every busy mart of trade where men think, and act, and feel in the interest of good government. The insult of the nomination of this man as a candidate for a high office has added to hatred of covered up, as his backers suppose it would, the high crimes and malfeasance of which he stands charged. It has nerved the arms of the men who have resolved to purify and elevate the politics of Pennsylvania, and enlightened the minds of thousands of people who are [illegible] made aware of the great perversion that the perpetration of human offences, and who ask still further to abuse it in order to demonstrate their power for evil.

The election thus presents no mention one, and we frankly declare we are glad it has come. We had the spirit of the people, as it is evinced in its attachment to personal rule and abhorrence of the one man power in Republican politics, as a splendid display of manly independence never before made by any party in Pennsylvania. All other parties which have passed out of existence in this State, in a manner compelled their death by the weight of their own corruption, which have ever since rendered their managers contemptible. The Republican party is not destined to die in this disgraceful manner, because it is being ruined to purge itself of water fossilized men in its system of existing on the original cause of the corruption, and thus perpetuating its life.

Fellow citizens of Pennsylvania, the time is coming when you must render your verdict in the great trial of the thieves who have for years been robbing you. All that is required of you is firmness, and that the words of Thomas Jefferson as it must be beneficial. You stand as a jury never did before, with the fingers of the men you are trying at each of your throats, but that will not prevent the verdict from being against them.—[Forney's Press.]

The Blanton Duncan Convention: Who Ran It?

W. Fish Conrad of this State was a delegate to the Louisville Convention. He became disgusted after he got there, and desired to make a statement to the Convention, but the Convention "smelt a mice" and declined to hear him. He therefore retired from it and published the following card in one of the Louisville papers:

CARD FROM FISK CONRAD TO THE TRUE DEMOCRACY OF THE UNITED STATES.

Representing the VIIth District of Pennsylvania in the Convention assembled in this city under the call of Blanton Duncan, I made several attempts to-day in the Convention to be heard. This was denied me, and in the most discourteous manner, by the President, who himself occupied at least two hours in a foolish gasconade about Dickens's Dolly Varden. My object was to expose the treachery of the Cameron-Hartranft thieves of my own State. The Pennsylvania delegation was composed of all Grant men except myself, not one of whom ever intended to vote for the nominee of this Convention. Their transportation to this Convention was obtained and paid for by the Grant people. My own, and those of five others, each representing a district in Pennsylvania, I procured in the office of the Grant State Central Committee of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia, corner of Eighth and Walnut sts., over a well known tailoring establishment. For this transportation I had an order from Sipes, Chairman of the Bourbon State Central Committee of Pennsylvania.

That order was obeyed by the State Treasurer of Pennsylvania, Robert Mackey, who is well known as one of Cameron's subjects. The band of music that accompanied us was furnished and paid for by the same Grant people, and our little farce that was carried by George Mountjoy is the same that designated the seats in the Radical Convention of the 5th of June of the Pennsylvania delegation that nominated U. S. Grant and which was presided over by Thos. Settle, the Rebel of North Carolina. This is the sum and substance of what I intended to say had the President allowed me to proceed, and now I assure all of my Democratic friends who may chance to see this communication that what I have stated here are facts, all of which I am prepared to prove.

W. FISK CONRAD,
XVIIth Congress District of Pa.

A GREAT many simple minded persons are just now asked to believe that Mr. Buckalew and his neighbors in Columbia county made an attempt to resist the draft in the spring of 1864. The whole story is a canard, as will be seen by Mr. Buckalew's statement, made at Pittsburgh, in a public address, last Thursday night. We clip it from the Commercial of the following morning:

"I was in Washington from early in 1863 until about the end of July, 1864. When I returned home, some days afterward, General Couch, who had his headquarters at Chambersburg, called upon me at my residence, and told me that some of the drafted men at the upper end of our county had refused to report, and that they and some others had taken steps to resist. I said to him that I thought these reports were exaggerated; but I would defer a journey I was about to make and would go with him among these men. He could not go. I accompanied him to town. I found a gentleman to take a communication from him to these drafted men. This messenger was sent, and the next morning I left home and did not return for some time afterward; and some arrests of our citizens were made at the end of that month. Now, all that I ever had to do with that trouble was this interview with General Couch, and he wrote to me on the 29th of September, his warmest thanks for the assistance which I had rendered him on that occasion. He referred to it with satisfaction, and had the kindness to say that he had given him; and that was the end of my whole connection with the draft in our county in 1864. But subsequently there was a trial at Harrisburg, of one of our arrested citizens, and the whole question was gone through with, as to the verity and truth of the resistance to the draft in that county; and upon full trial there was a unanimous acquittal of the gentleman, named McIlenny. He was sent home, and the whole business of prosecuting the citizens of our county came to an end. To sum it up in a word, there never was an officer of the United States, opposed, or resisted or even insulted in the limits of Columbia county. There never was the slightest resistance to the law in that county, and those who were concerned in the prosecution of our citizens ought now to be heartily ashamed of themselves, and to regret that the whole thing has been brought up again after a lapse of eight years."

Mr. Buckalew then concluded by a reference to the great corruption which was abroad in this land, and especially in this State where it came more directly under observation, and pointed out the remedy—namely: the election of Buckalew, Hartley, and their Democratic associates on the ticket.

In conclusion, he said: The duty has been charged upon me, as the standard bearer in the State contest, to place these matters before the people of the Commonwealth. Other gentlemen will speak of national issues. As a good preacher I generally adhere to my text.

A REPUBLICAN TO REPUBLICANS.

The Liberal Republican Candidate For the Presidency.

To the Editor of the Tribune.

SIR: I have known Horace Greeley for almost a quarter of a century. For the last half of that period it has been my privilege to see him often, and to have opportunities of observing what manner of man he is. Without claiming an extra share of philosophy or wisdom, I may be excused if I think that I possess such ability to an average degree, and in the exercise thereof I do, without the least doubt or hesitation, say to Republicans that Horace Greeley is a perfectly safe man with whom to intrust Presidential duties. Am I asked on what I base such judgment? I answer:

He is honest.
He is industrious [illegible]
He is free from bad habits.
He is morally as pure as the new-fallen snow.
He is kind.
He is capable of filling any place that he would accept.
He is familiar with the history of our country.
He is known by, and knows as many of our public men as any man in the Union.
He knows the capacities of the people and the resources of the nation.
He is conversant with the powers and duties of the Federal Government, how far it should go in protecting the citizens, and where it should stop with its dealings with the States.
He is jealous of the national honor, and would always maintain it, as well with foreign governments as in its pecuniary and other obligations.
He is incapable of a dishonorable act as a citizen or of disreputable conduct as an official, and I am quite sure that public trusts confided to him will be held in honor, administered in justice, and faithfully executed in accordance with law and for the interests of the people.

Does a candidate for the Presidency require other and better qualifications than these? Have any of our predecessors possessed either or all of them in a greater degree than does Mr. Greeley? I think not. Is my opinion governed by reason or personal regard? For about one-third of a century Mr. Greely has been writing or speaking on public matters, about public men, on questions of political economy, on national, State, and municipal affairs, on questions of morality, on personal rights, on international law, and he must have written intelligently, understandingly, or he would not, could not, have had the largest continuous body of readers and listeners that any American has ever been honored with or encouraged by; and it does not become those who to-day oppose his election to say that he was an ordinary writer, for no man of ordinary capacity has ever acquired the great influence on the public opinion of this country as has been conceded to Mr. Greeley. To say that he was an ordinary writer is to belittle the intelligence of that great throng of Americans who have been reading his writings and listening to his addresses during all these long years. To deny his integrity of purpose is to slander the American people, particularly that great element which embraces the educated, religious, thoughtful, moral portions of our countrymen, statesmen, lawyers, physicians, teachers, students and all those classes whose brain-move the masses and whose morality keeps society from utter degradation, as readers and auditors as has Mr. Greeley as editor of the Tribune and as a speaker on the rostrum. Can a man of this sort be other than capable, honest, true to his trusts?

No question of public importance has ever escaped his pen or speech, and never has he been found upholding evil or apologizing for wrong; never failing to teach the ignorant how costly ignorance is; never ceasing to teach that honesty, industry, temperance and frugality were better than their opposites. No manner of public policy calculated to ameliorate the condition of the people ever encountered the opposition of his powerful pen, but on the contrary, such measures have always found in him an able and zealous champion. Did flood or fire lay waste a hamlet or city, who so prompt to call for aid to the suffering, as the editor of the Tribune? If famine or pestilence struck down the people of a foreign clime, who so ready to give and urge others to give, as the Tribune editor? Who among our editors and speakers did more efficient work than Mr. Greeley in the great cause of Land Reform, whereby millions on millions of acres of God's fruitful earth were saved, without price, for God's tolling children? Everywhere, at all times and under all circumstances, he has ever been defending the weak in their rights against the strong in their wrong-doing. Such a man can be trusted by the people to do the people's work.

SINCLAIR TOUCEY.

A REPUBLICAN'S OPINION of MR. BUCKALEW

The Danville Intelligencer, a Republican journal, cannot support Hartranft. It expresses its intentions in this language: "After mature deliberation, and after consulting those especially interested in the utterances of this paper, we enter the lists, and shall support Hon. Charles R. Buckalew for Governor. We attach but little significance to political platforms. They are at best but fabrics of straw, and liable to collapse at any moment after the election. We have seen too much of party politics to attach any importance to these frail structures. Let us have good men and measures will be right. With bad men all the platforms ever reared will be but as idle wind, which they regard not.'

"The first consideration therefore should be to secure a good man—able, honest and reliable. So far as the material interests of the Commonwealth are concerned, there is but little professed difference between the two parties. They both profess to believe in a prudent and economical management of the finances. They both profess to cherish the interests and the honor of the State, and to guard the welfare of the people. A good man of either party would carry out the vital principles. A bad man of either party would sacrifice the principles to secure his own advantage. We therefore want a man who has been tried and found faithful. We do not want one who is suspected. Now, we cannot help it that the man above reproach happens to be the Democratic candidate; nor can we help it that the Republican candidate is not free from suspicion. We are, therefore, impelled by a sense of duty to support the Democratic candidate—not because he is a Democrat, but because we want a man who has the nerve, the ability and the honesty to carry out the principles of public economy, irrespective of party trammels.

"Holding these views, we are irresistably forced to support Mr. Buckalew, and we are free to say that we would just as ardently espouse the cause of the Republican candidate, if the personal aspect of the question had been reversed. We take our stand under the banner of Buckalew, because he is an able and honest men; and we oppose Hartranft because we believe he is not."

A Correspondent at Industry writes to the Radical last week as follows:

"EDITOR RADICAL: I write this to assure you that Industry is still in Beaver county; and what is of far greater import at the present time, still in the republican ranks, where we, as good citizens, intend to keep her until Grant, Wilson, Hartranft and Rutan shall have put on their crowns of laurels, ready to serve a loyal nation and a grateful people."

Yes, but what will the balance of the gentlemen composing the local ticket say to your putting "crowns of laurels" on Rutan's head, and giving them never so much as a sprig. Or is it your purpose down there to go for Mr. R. at the expense of every associate he has upon the ticket? That gentleman and his friends come games of that sort very frequently, but heretofore they have been discreet enough to not publish their programme in advance. Would it not be well enough at all events for Mr. Cross and one or two others we might name, to see about those Industry "laurels" before the campaign progresses much further?

MRS. BENCE has just opened, and will have during this season as soon as out, at the old stand in Beaver, everything new in the millinery, notion, and fancy goods line. I will have extra inducements to offer this season, and would respectfully solicit an early call. Also stamping done to order. Butter, eggs, and chickens taken in exchange for goods. ANNIE L. Eight Children at one Birth.—The Cincinnati Lancet and Observer for August says: On the 21st of August, Mrs. Timothy Bradlee, of Trumbull county, Ohio, gave birth to eight children—three boys and five girls. They are all living, and are healthy, but quite small. Mr. Bradlee was married six years ago to Eunice Mowery, who weighed two hundred and seventy-three pounds on the day of her marriage. She has given birth to two pairs of twins, and now eight more, making twelve children in six years. Mrs. Bradlee was a triplet, her mother and father both being twins, and her grandmother the mother of five pairs of twins." As a sequel to the forgoing we submit the following.

Admitted to the Bar.—During the present term of Court no less than three young gentlemen of this county were admitted to practice in its several courts. They are as follows:

John Buchanan, Esq., who is a native, we believe, of Hanover township, but has prosecuted his legal studies here for the past couple of years. Mr. B., is a graduate of Jefferson College, a young man of sterling habits, great energy, and a well disciplined mind. That he will soon rise in his profession no one doubts. He was a student in the office of S. B. Wilson, Esq.

C. P. Lister, Esq., the second gentleman admitted, has been a resident of Brighton township, this county, and graduated, professionally, in the law office of E. P. Kuhn, Esq. With Mr. Lister, we have no personal acquaintance, but hear him spoken of as a young man of fair ability, excellent private character, and with go-a-headitiveness sufficient to make his mark in the profession he now enters upon.

Franklin H. Agnew, Esq., was admitted to the Bar the present week. Mr. A. pursued his legal studies in his father's office—Hon. Daniel Agnew—and is also a graduate of Jefferson College. He was at one time principal in our Academy, then an officer of the United States Coast Surveying Corps, and now turns his attention to a profession which he will no doubt adorn, and make himself useful to.

The "Due Bill" Candidate Protesting Against Giving Land to Honorably Discharged Soldiers.—On the 24th of January last, General J. F. Hartranft, the "Ring" candidate for Governor, urged the passage of, and finally secured the adoption of the following resolution at the G. A. R. Convention in Philadelphia:

Resolved, That the Department of Pennsylvania, Grand Army of the Republic, earnestly protests against the passage of any law granting 160 acres of land to honorably discharged soldiers and sailors or their representatives, without actual residence thereon, as being adverse to a sound public policy in the disposition of public lands, locking out for years from the actual settlers nearly 300,000,000 acres, and in no way conferring any appreciable benefit on those it is proposed to serve.

A Touching Incident.—In describing the flood which was so disastrous to many sections in Virginia, the Lynchburg papers record the following very sad and touching incident;

"A mother and several little children were making their escape from a narrow neck of land, which lies between the river and the canal, when they were amazed to find the bridge already gone, and their only hope was to cling to the abutment of the bridge until the angry waves should subside. But, as they stood there clinging to the abutment, the water continued to rise higher and higher, while in the deep darkness they could hear the crashing of trees amid the thunder of bridge timbers that were wildly dashing around them. They had been in this desperate condition for some time when the little girl felt that her strength was gone, and with a shriek of terror, she exlaimed:

"Kiss me, mother, for I can't hold any longer!"

And, with the warm pressure of that mother's lips upon her cheek, she was swept away, and was seen no more."

Railroad Meeting.

PHILLIPSBURG, September 2, 1872.

Pursuant to notice a number of citizens of this place and vicinity met at the schoolhouse in Phillipsburg, to take into consideration the building of a railroad by the south side of the Ohio river to Pittsburgh. An organization was effected by calling John R. McDonald, esq. to the chair, and electing J C Ritchie and W J Langfit Secretaries. J P Fleming, esq., then made a lengthy and effective speech illustrating the advantages to be derived from the new railroad. Mr. Kerr, of Allegheny county, and Rev. W. Taylor addressed the meeting. The following persons were then selected as corporators: J P Fleming J H Hamilton, J B McKee, Marshall McDonald, W J Langfit, W B Anderson, W G Taylor, Wm Cooper, David McDonald.

The corporators were authorized to obtain such books as might be necessary, and to solicit subscriptions to the capital stock of the proposed corporation, and to make surveys for the location of the road. The meeting then adjourned. A railroad on the south side will be fed from the start by a large and remunerative local traffic, and will enhance the property along the route in value to an amount sufficient to defray the expenses of the construction. The gentlemen agitating the matter are going forward with a determination to put it through, and it is hoped that they will have the cordial co-operation of all the people of the south side.

Barnes, who has traveled through Palestine and Egypt—all of which are highly interesting and instructive, especially to those feeling a reverence for the birthplace of our blessed Lord. Dear friends, do not lose this splendid chance of getting good and doing good. Admission, 25cts. Children under 12 years, 15cts. Doors open at 7½ o'clock.

The "Buckeye Blacksmith."—An old fraud calling himself the "Buckeye Blacksmith," has been perambulating the county for some time past and making speeches in favor of Hartranft. He represents himself as being personally and intimately acquainted with the ring candidate for governor, and of course, vouches for the latter's honesty, but who in turn, will vouch for the "Buckeye Blacksmith's" truthfulness? We fear not one. Here is a sample of his veracity: He was making a speech the other night in front of the Court House in this place, to about two dozen boys and four men. One of the latter believing him to be a fraud paid some attention to what he said, with a view of ascertaining his real character. The "Buckeye" fellow told his hearers all about where he had been, how long he had lived at each point, and what he had followed during his career. This auditor kept a memorandum of the time the speaker lived at each place, and after footing it up discovered that according to the old loafer's statement, he was himself just 642 years of age. He says Hartranft is an honest man. Who could doubt this after it was alleged by a man who had just proved himself to be within a fraction as old as Methusaleh?

A citizen of Beaver has known the "Buckeye Blacksmith" for a great many years. About 20 years ago, we are told, the old fellow put in an appearance at Noblestown, West Va., as a temperance lecturer. He made furious temperance speeches to those who would listen to him, and after his meetings would adjourn, he and the landlord with whom he was stopping, would have a jolly drunk, until the wee small hours would set in, in the morning. Questions of a financial character also occupied a portion of the time of this illustrious couple. Here is how they raised the "wind": The "Buckeye Blacksmith" told the temperance people there that the landlord had embraced temperance principles, but being poor, he could not afford to throw away his liquors, shut up shop, and begin a new life; and suggested that if the total abstenence people would buy out his stock of stimulants, give the landlord a full equivalent for it, he would then sign the pledge, and hence forward be a totaler. He further told them that when these conditions were complied with, they would meet together, pour the whisky into the gutter, and have a joyful time generally, while the fire water was running away. Of course, they assented, and the money was raised forthwith. In the meantime, however, the "Buckeye Blacksmith" and the landlord were not idle. They at once began to empty the spirits into other casks and bottles and hid them away, and filled those with water which they intended to offer on the sacrafacial alter. The cash was handed over to the landlord, the time to pour the liquor into the gutter came around, and a large crowd gathered to see the performance. The barrels were brought forth, but just here some one suggested that it should be burned instead of thrown out. The idea was caught up by the crowd, the heads of the barrels knocked in, and a faggot applied, but not even a blue streak shot up toward the sky.—A shovel full of hot coals were thrown into each barrel, but only a "sizz" followed. "Sold," cried the crowd, and on looking about for the "Buckeye Blacksmith" he could nowhere be found. He had left for parts unknown, with, we presume, his share of the proceeds of the operation in his pockets.

We mention these facts now only to show the character of one of the men who is sent here to tell the hard-working and intelligent people of Beaver county how and for whom they should vote.

BEAVER, PA., Sept. 4, 1874.

N. C. MARTIN, ESQ., Dear Sir: In the Beaver Radical of Aug. 30, I notice what you call an acceptance of a challenge to discuss the issues of the present campaign, made publicly by me at Industry. I very much fear that your zeal to parade your name before the public thro' the columns of our newspapers, in order to create the impression that you are a gentleman of some political prominence, has led you to resort to political strategy unbecoming an honorable political opponent; for well you know that no challenge was extended to you by me. The invitation to discuss the issues of the present campaign was extended to Mr. J. S. Rutan, who said it would be impossible for him to do so as he had other engagements which required his undivided attention. You then came forward and said: "I will discuss the issues with you;" thus placing yourself squarely on the challenging stand. I accepted your challenge, and proposed to discuss the questions with you at Industry on the following evening. You objected by saying that you could not be there at that time. I then proposed to discuss them with you that night, before the meeting then and there assembled, adjourned. This you also emphatically declined, and refused to discuss the questions until some evening in the following week. This, as you are well aware, is the exact statement of the case, and in which the majority of the gentlemen present would concur. But, as you have now proper cause to construe this matter, I have no objections, and will accommodate you by considering myself the challenging party. I cannot oblige you by designating the Beaver Court House as the place of discussion for, while I have all confidence in your ability to entertain such an audience as would there assemble, yet I have very serious doubts as to my own. I shall, therefore, designate "Industry" as the place of discussion, the time for which I will give you due notice. Yours, very respectfully,
Jas. H. CUNNINGHAM.

The members of the Philadelphia Convention are busily engaged in denouncing Horace Greeley for his "traitorous" conduct in signing Davis' bail bond. The Philadelphia Convention gave Gerrit Smith a most enthusiastic welcome. No other man had such an ovation as he.—Yet he signed that bail-bond, and wrote long before, this letter:

PETERBORO, N. Y. Aug. 24, 1865.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON—Honored Sir: I have this day subscribed a memorial to yourself in behalf of Jefferson Davis. I have done so with great satisfaction, for I deem this very long confinement in prison without a trial an insult to the South, a very deep injustice to himself, and a no less deep dishonor to the Government and the country.

I trust that Mr. Davis may either have a speedy trial, or be admitted to bail.—There are many men who have no sympathy with his political views, and who opposed it very as strenuously as he upheld it, that would eagerly become his bail. I am one of them. Your obt svt.
GERRIT SMITH.

Moreover, in May, 1867, Henry Wilson, nominated for Vice President by the men who now denounce Greeley for his manly and humane course in signing Davis' bond, introduced into the Senate a resolution demanding the immediate trial of the Confederate President, or his release on bail, or even on his own recognizance.

It is useless to attempt to disguise the fact that much dissatisfaction is felt and expressed in this county on the subject of the Congressional nomination. It seems to stick out that Lawrence county has been traded off to accomplish the designs of parties living in other counties, in an entirely different matter. To be plain, it is more than hinted that *the nomination was thrown into Wash*ington county by the Beaver Conferees, to secure assistance in the election of a State Senator. As Lawrence county is relied on for the heavy majority in the Congressional canvas, she is at least entitled to be consulted before such trades are made.

As we have said in these columns before, Washington county, which is never reliable for even a small Republican majority, has had a Representative four years out of ten, and had no right to expect the nominee at this time. It was generally understood that Washington conceded the candidate to Lawrence. The candidate for State Senator in the Beaver district has some opposition in the Republican ranks, and Washington county is a part of that district. It is strongly suspected that in the interim between the first and second meetings of the Conferees, matters were "set up" for Beaver to throw the nomination to Washington and receive help in the Senatorial fight in payment. The suspicion that some understanding had been entered into was strengthened by the fact that at the second conference not one of the candidates for Congress from either Beaver, Washington or Greene were present and that gentlemen deeply interested in the Senatorial fight were.

Now, we have no objection to any candidate using all honorable means to secure an election, but we do object to Having the county which is entitled to the candidate, and which is relied on to furnish the majority to elect him, deliberately sold out without as much as "by your leave." The people of Lawrence county are true to the principles of the party, and when things are rightly conducted, reliable for a handsome majority for its candidates; but they are not cattle, to be sold in the market for the benefit of those who never bought them.—Strongly as we are opposed to the continuation of a Democrat in Congress, it is nonsense to shut our eyes to the fact that a large number of good Republicans in Lawrence county will refuse to be delivered over, as the part of such a bargain, Beaver and Washington counties must endeavor to roll up handsome majorities, or there may be trouble in the District. Lawrence county would have been good for 1800 majority if she had been fairly treated. If some explanation of the charge of bargain and sale is not made it will not be safe to bet on much more than half that. We give this note of warning in time. We have enough to contend with here without dissentions in our ranks. The candidate of the opposition is a soldier who did gallant service during the war. His private character is beyond reproach. He was born and raised in the county, and outside of politics has the respect and esteem of all who know him. He is popular among his comrades in arms and has many personal friends who would be glad to vote for him if it were not for his political faith. To beat such a man with anything like our usual majority, our people must be satisfied with the candidate and the manner of his nomination.—New Castle Courant.

Hon. E. Joy Morris, for many years a Republican member of Congress for this State, and ex-Minister to Turkey under Lincoln, was on last Saturday nominated by the Liberal Republicans and Democrats of the second district—Philadelphia—for Congress.

For the Beaver Argus.

MR. EDITOR.—I am now at home for more than a year, attending to my own private affairs. I am not a candidate for any office. I have not traveled, nor am I now traveling, the county electioneering for or against any one, or for or against any measure. I never have failed in resenting an insult or warding a blow aimed at me; nor do I know any of my name who has done so. Should I do so in the present case, I should feel that a stigma had attached to my character. Let me explain:

M. S. Quay (Cameron's little corporal of the Harrisburg Lobby,) and the calumnious Legislative-Ring Rooster—J. S. Rutan—(who is trying to drive, coax, purchase, whip-in, or deceive enough voters in this district to secure his return to Harrisburg, where his vote in the State Senate may be at the bidding of Quay to push through that body any corrupt measure which Cameron desires;) have purchased a swill cart, in the shape of a newspaper, in Beaver, entitled "Conservative," into the columns of which they spew their venomous filth and vile calumny, screened from the public eye by the pauo of its ostensible editor; and, as they have libelled me—especially the "infidavy-man"—I propose to drag him from his hiding place behind the said "dirt cart," and hold him up in all his naked deformity to the gaze of the citizens and voters of this Senatorial District, as I have done fairly and truthfully on former occasions; and then, if they elect to vote for him, let them forever after hold their peace on the subject of political rascality and corruption.

In order that those who read this may fully understand, let me explain: M. S. Quay and J. S. Rutan distributed the cash of the Treasury Ring throughout every township in the county to purchase Rutan's re-nomination. This is the way in which it was done: Persons not supposed to be politicians were employed in each township, at a stipulated price, to manipulate the same. These men so employed hired others, at from $2.50 to $3.00 per day, to tell their neighbors their reasons for supporting Rutan—reasons put into their mouths by their employers—and thus deceive them into his support. Do you wish names? I will give one at present, and if it be deemed expedient, others in the future. George Teets, of New Sewickley, handles the Quay-Rutan money for that township and (as I have reason to believe) for those of Marion, Franklin and North Sewickley. George claims to own all the voters in these townships; and, to use his own words, "makes them vote as he pleases." He does not tell them that he is paid for his work and their's too.

Let it not be forgotten that a vote for Rutan this fall, is a vote for the return of that corrupt old political sinner, Simon Cameron, (or some one of his ring) to the U. S. Senate, and for any scheme for defrauding the State Treasury which he may suggest. Quay has belonged to Cameron ever since that little Treasury villian—Bill Kemble—made the bargain with him at the Brady House, Harrisburg, in January 1867, to sell out Curtin and elect Cameron to the U. S. Senate. Quay MUST OBEY the Kickapoo Chief, and Rutan MUST obey Quay. Rutan MUST VOTE in the Legislature for Cameron's return to the Senate, or for the election of him upon whom the old Chief drops his filthy mantle. He must do this or he is now using the money paid for that purpose. Quay has complete control of Rutan, and watches him with unceasing vigilence, because if he trusts him out of his sight, Quay says, "he is sure to make a d——d fool of himself."

I have heard the unadulterated Imbrie say "Rutan never wrote or talked, but he put his foot in it, unless some one watched him." But he is the kind of tool these unprincipled politicians desire; they can mould him to their will.

You have in Beaver one among the ablest Justices of the Supreme Bench of Pennsylvania—Judge Agnew. Can you ask his vote to send a man, so miserably deficient in ability as J. S. Rutan, to make laws for him to adjudicate? I say no! Daniel Agnew, I do not believe, would trust Rutan in a simple action of debt before a country magistrate.

"But," you say, "Rutan is the nominee of the party, and, of course, we must not bolt him." My dear sir, during the war we were forced to vote for worthless scalawags who, through trickery or purchase, obtained a place upon the Republican ticket; but it is now our duty to relieve the party from all such cowardly, unreliable trash as he is, and save the Treasury from their plunder.

Simon Cameron says, "Quay you must bring Rutan back to Harrisburg, he is useful to me." Well, if the people desire that the old Treasury swindler should go back to the S. U. Senate, let them vote for J. S. Rutan, who dares not answer the interrogatory propounded in the Argus "whether, if elected, he will vote for Simon Cameron?" The little gambler of the "Radical" answers for him, and evades the question.

The egotism of J. S Rutan is disgustingly apparent in the puffs he gives himself in his reports of big meetings held in Industry and elsewhere, which appear in the Pittsburgh "Commercial" —all written by himself

Let me repeat the warning to our people that all who are whipped-in to vote for this fraud on the body politic—J. S. Rutan—will vote for one who is already sold to vote for Cameron and the Treasury Ring. The enormous frauds on the State Treasury must be covered, and Rutan must be in the Legislature to help do it. He must be there to assist in the re-election of the gambler Mackey as State Treasurer, one who is now in arrears to the extent of $150,000. Had I been similarly in default while State Treasurer, do you suppose the people of this district would have been willing to send men to the Legislature to secure my re-election? No, I am certain they would not. And they would be right. But, because Mackey is a blackleg gambler—like Quay—some of our puritanic citizens close their eyes and go it blind for Rutan, the purchased tool of Cameron and Mackey. I dare him to deny over his own signature that he is not purchased, or that he has not pledged himself to vote for Cameron for Senator, and Mackey for Treasurer, should he be returned to the Legislature, and they be candidates before that body for those offices. I suppose he still keeps some of the old affidavits he obtained in 1870, one of which might be attached to his denial and then it would be sure to be true.

The Senatorial coward, Rutan, has pimps hired to visit men in the respective boroughs and townships of this county to slander me, by charging that I have deserted the Republican and joined the Democratic party. He even went so far as to keep open house, during court week, and wined and dined citizens to the score, for the very purpose of instilling these slanders, among other matters, into their minds. Those who know me, and choose to be hoodwinked, will discover their folly when too late. To all such I will simply say I am a truer Republican to-day, than is J. S Rutan. I am prepared to prove that he is now offering to trade off any or every man on the Republican county ticket for Democratic votes for himself. I can give the names of Ring men in New Brighton who have offered to trade off the Republican candidate for Sheriff, but the Democrat very properly declined.

Quay says if they come within a hundred, or so, of electing Rutan, they can fix the balance as they did in Shurlock's case; by the purchase of an election board in Washington county. Quay will say this is not true. Well, to the proof. A gentleman in Bridgewater remarked to Shurlock after the election that "he was fortunate in getting those fifteen votes in Washington county." "Yes," replied Shurlock, "but they cost me a thousand dollars."

Shortly afterwards, the same gentleman met Rutan on board the cars, and remarked that Shurlock told him those fifteen votes in Washington county, by which he was elected, had cost him a thousand dollars. Rutan answered: "Shurlock is a d——d liar, for Quay paid the money." Rutan dare not deny this, for the gentleman would thrash him into the truth.

I understand the Ring men are sending the Conservative to all the subscribers of the ARGUS throughout the county, that they may be able to know who you and myself are, Mr. Editor; and I intend to introduce Mr. Rutan to them, in his true colors, before the election comes off. I should not have noticed him, had he not attacked me in the Conservative in so cowardly a manner. He may now look out, for I will give him his true colors.

Rutan is green enough to boast that he has the influence of Capt. J. V. McDonald, who is a Democrat, in favor of his re-election. Rutan and Quay boasted at the U. S. Hotel, in Atlantic City, that they had succeeded in inducing Captain McDonald to purchase the only Democratic paper in the county, and they had the use of it; and Rutan declared they could publish anything they wished in that paper by furnishing Williams (the reputed editor) with a drink of whisky. He also boasted that a little deposit of money from the State Treasury in Capt. McDonald's Bank would secure his vote and all the Democrats by whom he is surrounded.

Let me tell Mr. Rutan that Capt. McDonald is made of better material than those the aforesaid Senator has been accustomed to deal with. He cannot be bribed. He is no Cameron pimp, to be bought by the corruption fund. What do Speverer & McDonald care for a little deposit, when they are able to buy and sell the whole Cameron clan and their treasury plunderers together and not miss the money?

Let it not be forgotten that the money used by the thimble-rigger and Cameron treasury-ringmaster, Quay, in organizing the wide-awake and so-called Grant Clubs—was appropriated for the purpose of promoting the election of Rutan, and these clubs while ostensibly working for the National and State tickets, are expected to carry Rutan through, however obnoxious he may be individually. They dare not call them Grant, Wilson and Rutan Clubs because to mix them with the one who never swore to a lie would kill their influence.

This is a grand season for those who sell themselves for money. Rutan can only succeed through its free use, and he has access to the Cameron corruption fund for his supply. It might be well for the boys to raise the market price, since there is so great a demand for votes to carry Rutan through. Cameron never expects a strict account to be returned of the use of his corruption funds, and I suggest to those in that line to make as large a haul as possible. More anon.
W. W. IRWIN.

There is not a girl on earth, whether the daughter of prince or pauper, who, if made a perfect mistress of all household duties, and were thrown into a community wholly unknown, would not rise from one station to another, and eventually become the mistress of her own mansion, while multitudes of young woman placed in positions of ease, elegance and affluence, but being unfitted to fill them, will as certainly descend from one round of the ladder to another, until at the close of life, they are found where the really competent started from. Mothers of America if you wish to rid your own and you rebidden's households of the destroying locusts which infest your houses and eat your substance, take a pride in educating your daughters to be perfect mistresses of every home duty; then, if you leave them without a dollar, be assured they will never lack a warm garment, a bounteous meal, or a cosy roof, nor fail of the respect of any one who knows them.

NEW BRIGHTON, Sept. 5th, 1872.

EDITOR BEAVER ARGUS:—The depth of degradation, to which men stoop in the present campaign, is truly astonishing. Heretofore honorable men hesitate not to tell things which have not the semblance of truth, if thereby they can prejudice the prospect of an opposing candidate, or detract from the influence of some prominent citizen.

Many citizens, for its supposed effect upon the interests of Grant and Hartranft (the swindling candidate for Governor of this State) have that filthy sheet—the Beaver Conservative thrust upon them without its being ordered. It is the medium through which Quay and Rutan throw the most disgusting slime at honorable gentleman in this county. It is inexplicable that so much of a gentleman as J. V. McDonald, would own a paper to be used as the common cesspool for such notorious Cameron pimps. The Conservative is worse and much more disgusting than the Jakey, which was abated as a public nuisance in Pittsburgh, some years ago. There seems to be little doubt in the minds of the community that Quay and Rutan are the authors of most of the vulgar and scurrilous articles with which its columns are filled from week to week.
VIATOR.

A Pittsburgh journal wants to know if some one at Harrisburg cannot ascertain in what banks and with what bankers the State money has been deposited; how often and at what dates deposits have been changed from one bank to another, adding:

It would be an interesting subject of investigation to discover whether these deposits were made for the purpose of facilitating the business of the Commonwealth, or simply to reward partisans. The universal idea is, that these deposits are paid for at a moderate rate of interest—say five per cent.—which, on the total sum deposited, brings about $100,000 per annum—not to the Treasury, but to the men who have charge of the Treasury. We think the penal code of the State provides that men

A High Moral Entertainment—A Bull Fight in New Mexico.

The following is from the Santa Fe New Mexican:

Santa Fe amuses itself with cock fighting, but our sister city, Los Vegas, goes us a few better, and makes a bully entertainment for the sporting citizens. We are reliably informed that the bull fighter stands with a huge, sharp, cheese knife directly in front of the flaming eyes of the maddened, charging bull (he is previously made mad by a visit to several of the saloons there) and waltzes a few steps of "La Sentinela" to give a graceful effect, raises his murderous weapon straight up in the air above his head, ahems, mentions a few saints names, cries "carajo!" and for a few seconds disappears from view in the lightning rapidity of his movements. He is next seen superbly bowing and sweetly smiling, while the infuriate beast is observed to have a bloody collar about his neck—the skillful hero has entirely severed his connection between the skin on the head and the rest of the body! The animal turns, and with a speed doubled by his increased rage, charges upon his would-be victim again. The dauntless gladiator, with distended nostrils, flashing eyes and compressed lips, kicks out first one leg and then the other. He is making preparations for a desperate effort. He hurls his knife from him. He sees no one now but his dreadful antagonist. As the contestants rapidly approach each other the vast audience is breathless with interest and excitement, and just at the fearful moment when the spectators, beholding the horns of the incarnate bull fiend at the breast of the gladiator, hide their faces from the horrible vision, the gladiator sackes both thighs, blows his muscle, snorts, springs above the bull, turns a double summersault, greaps the uplifted tail as he passes, strikes fair on his feet, gives the bull a swing, a short, whip-like jerk, and sends him out of his hide with a loud pop, like the sudden bursting of eleven hundred bladders. He crawls into the empty hide of his vanquished antagonist and lopes out amid the cheers and applause of the people.

Swopping for a Testament.—"Say, Mister, will you swop a Testament for some sugar?" said a little lad to a missionary of the Sunday School Union. "I ain't got no money, but here's some cakes of maple sugar. It's all I've got to give. They are mighty nice. Will you swop, sir? Mother wants the book, and I'd like awful well to get it for her."

The swop was made, and turned to so good an account, by the interest which the story excited, that 200 little ones in those backwoods were each made richer by the possession of a copy of that same book. Even a boy's two cakes of maple sugar are not to be despised.

III. All articles in the Manufactories or Mechanical Departments must be made in the county, within a period of one year previous to the present Fair. The Board of Managers may award premiums on articles of special merit from other counties or States.

IV. Each horse or colt (except those engaged in hauling articles to the Fair, which shall not remain), will be taxed 25 cents each; a pair of horses, one corner in harness or otherwise, 50 cents.

The Board of Managers, which includes officers, will be present on the grounds, and will be pleased to give information to competitors or others desiring it.

The Secretary of the Society will be ready to receive entries for two weeks previous to the Fair, and would request all who can, to make application before the Fair, as it may facilitate arrangements that may be made for their accommodation.

In presenting the foregoing "List of Premiums" the Board wishes to call attention to the fact that it has undergone a thorough revision and correction, and invite a careful perusal, feeling that in variety and extent it is not surpassed by any other County Society in our State. Taking these facts into consideration we invite all to compete, hoping that we may have an exhibition which will prove alike creditable to our Association, and to the agricultural interests of our county.

HONEST MEN, READ!

What Republicans Say of the Evans Ring Candidate for Governor.

There is a great deal of dissatisfaction with the Republican State Ticket, viz. HARTRANFT, BY HIS CONNECTION WITH THE EVANS SWINDLE, AND ALLEN, BECAUSE OF HIS VOTES FOR THE NINE MILLION STEAL.—Lancaster Volksfreund.

We regret that as long as Auditor General Hartranft was on the stand before the Evans Investigating Committee HE DID NOT TELL ALL HE KNEW concerning the affair.—Pittsburgh Gazette.

Your committee have not language sufficiently strong to express their disapprobation of so bold an outrage, or fitting terms in which to characterize THOSE IN OFFICIAL POSITION WHO SEEK TO PALLIATE OR EXCUSE THE WRONG. —Hon. Jas. L. Graham.

If they are not disproved (charges against Hartranft) they will be accepted as true by the people. IT WILL NOT DO TO MAKE HARTRANFT OUR CANDIDATE.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

They cannot but express their disapprobation of the looseness of OFFICIAL ROUTINE THAT PLACED IN THE HANDS OF EVANS OVER A MILLION OF DOLLARS OF VALUABLE ASSETS WITHOUT REQUIRING FROM HIM ANY SECURITY WHATEVER.—Hon. Harry White

Evans collected $184,168 34 and retains the whole. STATE OFFICIALS KNEW THIS FACT FOR THREE YEARS BEFORE IT BECAME PUBLIC, AND THE NEGLECT TO REPORT THE TRANSACTION TO THE LEGISLATURE IS REGARDED BY US AS A GROSS DERELICTION OF OFFICIAL DUTY.—Hon. D. N. White.
